

Department of Educational Support Services
presents:

The Twentieth Annual Literacy and Learning Institute Follow-Up Day

“Reading and Writing the World”

Date: April 24, 2010
Time: 9:00 am – 2:00 pm (Registration begins at 8:30 am)
Instructor: Isoke Titilayo Nia
Audience: Grades K-8 educators
Cost: $95 per person
Location: Eastern Suffolk BOCES, Sherwood Corporate Center,
15 Andrea Road, Holbrook, NY 11741

This workshop will support teachers turning classrooms into rich, literate Non fiction Writing Workshops...places where children become writers, learn to observe the world within and around them, write drafts, revise, edit, and publish and present powerful pieces of Non Narrative Nonfiction Writing. Through powerful read-alouds and shared readings of a select stack (All About Books, Essay, Commentary, Feature Article, How To) of richly woven informational texts, children pursue their natural interest in the world around them while they are using their non narrative reading strategies and learning to write like the materials they are reading. This workshop will enable teachers to return to their classrooms and begin immediately to change the look of Non Narrative Non Fiction in their schools.

About the presenter: Isoke Titilayo Nia is the founding director of All Write Literacy Consultants in Brooklyn, New York. She is the author of Literacy as Social Practice: Primary Voices K-6. Isoke is the writer of short stories and along with a collection of her stories she is close to completing a book tentatively entitled, Digging Deep: The Study of Genre in the Process Classroom. She has been an educator for over 25 years.
