District Report Card Data

How Districts Can Leverage NYSED Educational Data

The New York State website data.nysed.gov has been around for years. The site contains a wealth of publically released educational data. Is your district using it to its full potential?

In this share we will review the website, the data it contains, and recent changes made that correspond with ESSA guidelines and parent access. We will feature how districts in our region have put this educational data to work, and highlight venues where utilizing the data was supportive.

Whether you are looking to create longitudinal data visualizations, make district comparisons, the data represented on the NYS Report Card can be used in a multitude of ways.

We will review,

- Site basics and recent changes and additions
- How Suffolk districts are leveraging educational data, and the various ways the data is being utilized
- Customizable analysis and data visualizations used throughout the region
