PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM

Students Make Learning Their Mission,
Not An Assignment
Presented by Angelo Truglio

Virtual Workshop

This training will focus on teaching practices, communication skills and strategies that foster and sustain a ‘growth mindset’ approach toward learning. Teach less, coach more and manage better as students learn HOW to overcome obstacles that interfere with achievement and self-direct their learning. Supports any content instruction.

This is the follow-up to the introductory course offered on March 16th

If you couldn't attend the introductory virtual workshop on 3/16, a 10-15 minute refresher will be given at the beginning of this virtual offering on 3/30**

DATES: Wednesday, March 30, 2016
TIME: 4:00 – 6:30 pm

Angelo Truglio is the creator of “I Can Do That Kids” which provides innovative resources to enable students to help themselves learn. He was a music educator for thirty-three years in the Connetquot School District. This provided the opportunity to teach all grade levels giving him a broad perspective as to the obstacles and challenges that students face at each grade level. His dedication to the implementation of effective teaching strategies led to more than twenty-five years of experience as a facilitator for professional development workshops as well as conferences presentations. Mr. Truglio taught as an Adjunct Professor at New York University preparing undergraduate and graduate students to enter the education profession. He is a recipient of the U.S. Department of Education Christa McAuliffe Grant for his work, “Parents & Teachers as Partners.” His resources and presentations offer hands-on and practical tools to teachers, parents and students for meeting the expectations of schools and the Common Core State Standards Initiative.
